Silicon Motion Technology Corporation Updates Second Quarter 2009 Guidance

TAIPEI, Taiwan, July 9, 2009 – Silicon Motion Technology Corporation (NasdaqGS: SIMO; the “Company”), a leading fabless semiconductor company that designs, develops, and markets universally compatible, high-performance, low-power semiconductor solutions for the multimedia consumer electronics market, today announced an update to its second quarter 2009 financial guidance.

The Company now expects:

Q2 2009 revenue

New guidance: down 5 to 10% sequentially

Prior guidance: up 5 to 15% sequentially

Q2 2009 gross margin

New guidance: 47 to 48% range

Prior guidance: 44 to 46% range

Q2 2009 operating expense

New guidance: $11 to 12 million (excluding stock-based compensation, acquisition-related charges, and one time items)

Prior guidance: $12 to 13 million (excluding stock-based compensation, acquisition-related charges, and one time items)

“The Company continued to be impacted by the effects of the global economic slowdown and the NAND flash shortage that our customers have been facing. We had anticipated an increase in NAND flash supply from chipmakers in the second quarter as a result of their higher fab utilization rates, but availability of supply to our customers remained limited and this in turn limited their procurement of controllers,” said Wallace Kou, President and CEO of Silicon Motion. “Our gross margins are however significantly higher than planned due to better product mix management, which partially offset our anticipated lower revenue. While our anticipated second quarter sales are weaker than expected, we remain optimistic about our long-term prospects and product roadmap, whether relating to flash controllers, mobile TV ICs, or other products.”

The Company is planning on releasing its second quarter 2009 results after the market closes on July 29, 2009 and hosting a conference call on July 30, at 8 am Eastern Time, to discuss its results.
